

MLA STYLE GUIDE

HEADER

Every page should have a header that is right aligned and includes the last name and the page number.

In the upper left-hand corner of the first page, you should list your name, the professor's name, the class, and the date (with the date formatted like 19 November 2013).

Food Related Illness
In the restaurant business and in home preparation, one of the biggest threats to a food handler is food related illness

IN-TEXT CITATIONS

Every time you use another author's ideas (summary, paraphrase, or quotation), do the following:

- In parentheses after the quote, put the last name of the author and the number of the page.
- Put the period outside the parenthesis.
- If there's no author, use the title of the article instead. If there's no page, omit it.

You can also divide the citation by mentioning the author's name when introducing the quote. Then just put the page number at the end.

However, such situations cause "permanent trauma to the formation of the brain" (Hunt 42).

Divided Citation

In Thomas A. Maik's article, he states, "Women in marriage have prescribed roles" (25).

No Page

This form of manipulation is present in a surprising 90% of marriages (Miles, Barn, and Phillips).

No Author or Page

These stories represent "the rebellion of women against patriarchal oppression" ("Existentialism").

BLOCK QUOTATIONS

If you use a quote that is four lines or more, make the quote its own paragraph. Indent the entire paragraph one inch from the left margin, omit the quote marks, keep it double spaced, and put the citation after the final period.
